

Jamison W. Brown has focused on combining sound design with ecological sensitivity and social responsibility to improve project efficiency and quality. Mr. Brown has extensive experience, and manages projects through all phases of their life cycle.

Prior to joining JHLE, Mr. Brown was a designer at several of the Midwest's premier landscape architecture firms, where he worked throughout the U.S. on many high profile projects. Mr. Brown's background in natural resources and architecture has shaped his holistic view of the landscape. This view helps clients to achieve the best possible outcome for the development of these sites.

Mr. Brown continues to serve on architectural review juries, and provide pro bono design services to not for profit organizations in the community.
